

SESI ANIMAL TESTING POLICY

At SESI Food and Household Refill LLP, we produce detergents, soaps and toiletries that contain no animal products in the formulation, and we therefore label them as vegan.

Additionally, no animal testing is carried out in trialling and assessing our products.

Some common and basic ingredients used in the household and beauty industries were long ago tested on animals. More recent compounds may or may not be tested on animals.

Our policy is strictly to not use ingredients tested on animals after 11th March 2013. This is the commonest fixed cut-off date when EU regulations in this area came into force and is widely accepted for purposes of vegan certification.

Our Formulation Restrictions used to guide in the development of new products includes the above criteria and we get a complete list of chemical components in new formulas so we can check compliance with our animal testing criteria.

We require third party toiletries and detergents that we may distribute have a similarly restrictive animal testing policy.
